

It's Hard to Dream When You Can't Sleep at Night

There are an estimated 600,000 homeless people in Haiti; Global Adolescent Project is working to reduce that number by helping one teen at a time. Imagine trying to dream about your future without even having a bed to sleep in at night; it isn't easy.

In our last update 16 G.A.P. kids got a new home but it was unfurnished and our first priority was beds. Until now, each of our adolescents slept on thin and worn mats and there weren't even enough of these to go around. Haiti Communitere, a NGO focused on Response, Relief, and Renewal in Haiti had just finished using 8 bunk beds they built for a recent set of visiting doctors. Through our local networking, G.A.P. was able to obtain these top notch beds. With our mission of Empowerment in mind, and the help of Communitere's director, Sam Bloch, our kids learn to disassemble the beds and re-install them in our new house.

The thin mats just didn't work on the wooden frames so we needed mattresses. A magnificent donation from Nancy Miller of Los Angeles, a former nurse, made it possible for our kids to be able to start dreaming with the comfort of a good night's rest. Building a future is tiring and Ms. Miller wanted our kids to have a place to rest easy.

Next, we hope to get more beds for the kids who are dispersed in other shelters throughout Port-Au-Prince and we would like to have a large dining room table and chairs for family style meals in the new house. There is still much more work to be done and you can help by clicking Donate Now at
